Bugs, Fleas, Morns, Beerles, and all other

Insects, are Destroyed by KEATING'S INSECT POWDER, which is quite harmless to Domestic Animals. In exterminating Beetles the suspess of this Powder is extraordinary, and no one need be troubled by those pests. It is perfectly clean in application. Ask for, and take no other than,

"KEATING'S POWDER," as imitations are noxious, and fail in giving estisfaction. Soid

I had the good fortune, on the evening of the 20th, to witness what was to me a very interesting ns well as a novel spectucle on the low ground 3. of the S.E. corner of the city wall. Coming from the South Gate across the plain to the Settlement, I saw what I at first took to be a funeral cortege, surrounded by a greek growd of people. A nearer approach revealed. number of buildings made of reeds and blue paper, so lined as to imitate brick houses. These build. ings were the entrance, with a keeper's room and an attendant's room on either side. Entering this court, there was a two chieu building on either side about 5 by 15 feet. Opposite the entrance was the "fing fung" (or reception rooms), a three chien building about 8 by 24 foot. Passing through this into the second court, there was the same arrangement of buildings, viz., a two chien building on either side and a three chien " cheng fang," these representing the inner or private apartments of the family. In addition to these, a small kitchen was stowed away in one corner of the court The outer walls of these buildings were conneeted by paper and reeds, thus forming a compound, after the Chinese style of building. Each room (or chien) was fitted with its appropriate furniture, and articles of family or individua use, as kangs, or brick platform beds and bed ding, tables, stools, vessels of different kinds sticks, mirrors, dressing cases, with combs, boxes and brushes complete. One of the side rooms was fitted as a student room with books, paper, ink-stone, ink-stick, pens, holders, etc., and the universal fan and fancase. In one room of the "t'ing fang" were pair of official boots, official hat, a pipe and tobacco, small fancy-box for small articles, and other things pertaining to official position. I do not say for a moment that a line would be impracticable or useless, but merely that, unless I am much mistaken, a very much better route can be found elsewhere if it is looked for.

The Grand Canal, undoubtedly, follows the natural line of water communication and it is to the improvement of this that the energies of the Government ought to be directed. The establishment of steamboat communication between Shanghai and Tientsin has made it possible for the Government and the people to submit to what would otherwise be the almost intolerable nuisance of baving the canal dry for months at a time, and has thus deprived the Government of that inducement which they would otherwise have had to prosecute with vigour the works which are necessary to maintain the canal

The circumstances of which the earth comprises. the time are, unfortunately, specially suitable for the rapid growth of the fatal plant. Owing to one cause and another, labour is dissatisfied with its share of profit almost throughout the civilised world. Even in our own country, erst lawabiding and intelligent Lancashire has just with full accounts of the conquest of Kashgar turned its back upon its own antecedents by by the Chinese and the events leading up to it! the maddest destructiveness-maddest because the rioters have destroyed in some instances the very mills by which only they can obtain future fore; but as a connected history of Kashgar, The NEW PATENT AUTOMATON UI work. the world has somehow fallen. The only remedy Yacoob Bag further concentrated most of his is. of course, to start a new world by readjustin. troops at Toksun and Kurla, and left only a few the whole of the machinery which has so at Kashgar. He also made his eldest son, Beg sadly fallen out of gear. Under ordinary Kull Beg, Vicercy, with full powers. The Chicircumstances the vast majority of English nese, on receiving the answer of Yacoob Beg, in operatives would have deaf ears for such blatant nonsense. Circumstances are, unfortunately, defeated and driven back to Urumtsi. Whilst the feverse of ordinary when hard-working, they were recruiting their energies for a fresh intelligent, self-dependent man and women attempt, an event occurred which placed the find themselves suddenly cut adrift from whole country at their mercy. On the 8th of their usual lives and forced to accept profitless June Yacoob Beg suddenly died, murdered, it idleness in lieu of profitable industry. Let the is believed, by one of his own officers—an old blame be their own or not, the trial through brother in arms—Mirza Kamal. He himself set, out for the capital, ton mill; it is a cowardly thing to burn an amployer's house when it has no defenders; it is despatched for burial. Beg Kuli, who was then altogether vile and un English to insult and at Kashgar, strongly suspected his brother and frighten women, either of high or low degree. Perhaps the man's mother and sister disposed of in a like manphilosophy of West-end society would be some- ner. Beg Kuli then gathered as many troops as what strained if every source of amusement were he could, and moved towards Aksu. Hakim Khen ruthlessly out off on an appointed day if every customary form of recreation were placed under a ban. We should rather expect to hear some strong representations made to Government about the grievance, and Trafalgar-square might, perhaps, witness a mass meeting of discontented fashionables. But in Lancashire it is something of infinitely more importance than recreation and amusement from which the people find themselves cut off just at present. Daily labour, employment for the hands and mind, daily bread, the sense of satisfaction that comes from earning money by hard toil, family contentment and comfort these be things which cannot be taken away from Englishmen, whatever their rank, without begetting bitter feelings. And in popular irritation of this sort your Communist sees the very seed-ground which he most loves. There is little fear, however, of the Red Spectre first raising its disagreeable head in merrie England. We must look away apparently towards the Frozen North for its next avatar. Odd that Communism should be peeping out from behind the most autocratic throne in Europe; odd that Holy Russia should have taken ments of various shrewd observers who have had good opportunities for forming judgment. They agree in representing Russia to be permeated with revolutionary secret societies from ence to create widespread disaffection of the

Under the walls of Yangishabr, a restored to high command, now that there is no decisive battle was fought. Beg Kuli was totally enemy in the field, to take advantage of their defeated; and Kashgar was taken without further fatuous blundering. Discontent everywhere and among all classes; this seems the salient characteristic of the present hour in Russia. Will it Sadeek, the Kirghis, the old enemy of Russia, be greater or less when the people discover the to the protection of the Governor-General of exact amount of the bill they have to pay for Turkestan. And thus after sixty years' freedom indulging the ambitious whims of their ruler and fe I the independence of Kathgaria; and such was his satellites? mand to Hakim Khan, another of Yacoob Beg's on his side resolved to defend himself, and the Governor of Khotan, Naiz Bog, sided with him. The Chinese immediately took advantage of these dissensions. One body of their troops advanced from Urumtsi southwards, and another from Khamil, on Turfan. This time there was no o position. Turfan surrended at discretion and was immediately sacked. Most of the regular Kashgar troops were at Aksu; and as they showed no signs of moving therefrom, the Chinese advanced towards Karashahr. They were met half way by a mixed body of Dungans, who, being unsupported by the regular troops, were easily defeated Karashahr was then occupied by the Chinese.

Meanwhile, Aldash Beg, the Kirghis, an adopted son of Yacoob Beg was despatched by Beg Kuli with a handful of troops against Hakim Khan. In a batttle which took place between Aksu and Maralbash, Aldash Beg was entirely defeated. Beg Kuli, however, sont him large reinforcement of troops and some field artillery. The troops of Hakim Khan deserted in great numbers, and Hakim Khan was defeated and compelled to take refuge in the Tokmak district in Russian territory. Exhausted by the struggle, to its bosom such a very unholy friend.
